LETTER FROM THE BOARD

Summer is the season of national championships. Southern California players showcased their talents by participating in key events. GM Vladimir Akopian, our new state champion, attempted to retain his national title at the Senior Championship in Saint Louis in July. He came up short in the playoff games after a first-place three-way tie with GM Alex Shabalov and the ultimate winner, GM Alex Fishbein. GM Kirk Ghazarian and FM Rose Atwell competed for the Junior and Girls titles, respectively.

The SoCal team at the National Tournament of State Champions held in Middleton, Wisconsin, alongside the US

Open, won 3rd place among 53 participating teams. FM Isaac Wang and GM Melik Khachiyani tied for third in their respective sections: the Denker and the Irwin. The accolades did not stop at the chessboard there. At the USCF awards ceremony, Coach Jay Stallings received the Dan Heisman Award for Excellence in Chess Instruction, and GM Melik Khachiyani received the Outstanding Team Achievement Award for his role as the coach of the US Women's Olympiad Team.

University High School of Irvine grabbed 5th place at the World Schools Team Championship held in Alexandria, Virginia the first week of August. The team was aided by an impressive performance from Tori Porat, who won a silver medal on board 3. A group of SoCal youngsters participated in the 2025 North American Youth Chess Championships in Kingston, Ontario. FM Julian Colville placed first in the U16 section, earning his first IM norm.

Finally, the Board would like to thank all the contributors to this issue. Special appreciation goes to IM Robert Shlyakhtenko, who not only annotated games from his win at the PSW open, but also showcased our 2025 Southern California State Championship in his contribution to the August issue of Chess Life. Check it out!

Sincerely,
The SCCF Board

The Hakobyans Sweep Memorial Day Weekend

By CM Ala'a-Addin Moussa and Chris Roberts

2025 Invitational State Championship

Early this year, the SCCF board had a major decision to make: whether to organize the 2025 Invitational State Championship or skip it due to budgetary constraints. However, with the huge success of the 2024 Invitational State Championship held at the Temecula chess club in June last year, and covered in detail in the Rank & File 2024 Summer issue, most of the board members voted to go ahead and hold it in conjunction with the annual Lina Grumette Memorial Day Classic in Van Nuys at the end of May.

The decision proved fruitful. Our membership stepped up and raised over $12,000 in donations (that varied from $5 to a few thousand per donation) which completely covered the prize fund. The turnout was also extremely pleasing as all seven top-rated SoCal players accepted the invitation to compete with the 2024 State Open Champion FM Rostomyan, completing the strongest field ever in SCCF history. This field of six GMs, one IM, and one hard-to-beat FM boasted an average rating of 2554 USCF and 2486 FIDE.

Just like last year, the championship was fiercely contested and ended up in a tie for first place between GM Vladimir Akopian and GM Arman Mikaelyan with 4.5 points from 7 rounds. The tie break favored GM Akopian, who landed the state title and the trophy. IA Randy Hough ran the event as the FIDE arbiter while Chris Roberts set up the DGT boards, ran the live broadcast on chess.com and lichess.org, and took pictures.

Round 1: The first round of the state championship produced one decisive result. GM Baryshpolets won against IM Shlyakhtenko after the latter reacted to 13. f4 poorly by sacrificing a knight and missing the correct continuation of 13...Nh5 and 14...g5.

Round 2: GM Baryshpolets was once again involved in the only decisive result of the 2nd round of the state championship, albeit on the losing end. He was tactically outplayed by GM Mikaelyan in a Ruy Lopez.

I've played against Andrey a couple of times, and he's always been a tough opponent for me. This game is one of my favorites—not just from this tournament, but overall.

26. Ng4 I could've taken the knight, but then I wouldn't have had any real chances to attack his king. That's why I brought my knight closer instead. 26...Na6?!

(26...h5 was the best decision, since my knight later became a real headache for the Black king. 27. Qxb4 hxg4 28. hxg4 Rc8)

27. d4 Restricting the knight. 27...g5?? (27...h5 was the last chance to deal with the knight, but after 28. Ng5, the follow-up wasn't easy to figure out. 28...Qe7 29. Qxf4 Rf8 30. Bxf7+ Kh8 31. Nh2 Bxd4)

28. e5 It's hard to believe, but the position is already lost due to White's active pieces and the misplaced knight on a6. 28...Nc7 (28...Bxf3 29. e6 +-)
29. Qd3 Bxf3

To be honest, my first intention was to capture the knight. But after about ten minutes of thought, I saw a beautiful combination that would lead to a win.

Annotated by GM Kirk Ghazarian

My prior four games ended peacefully before this, despite all of them being long, tense struggles. I was eager to continue playing creative chess and play a decisive game in this tournament. 1. d4 d5 2. c4 e6 3. Nf3 Nf6 4. Nc3 h6 5. g3 Bd6 6. a3!? This move appears abstruse, since the intention of this pawn move remains ambiguous. The hidden point behind this waiting move is revealed a move later. 6...O-O 7. g4!

White strikes on the kingside now that Black has committed to castling. It's a rare idea that was previously only played twice in OTB games, with White winning both. This steers the game into murky waters.

 GM Kirk Ghazarian at 2025

7...Ne4! My experienced opponent declines this pawn sacrifice correctly, with Ne4 being the best response to White's aggressive play. (7...Nxg4?
 This greedy move would be a mistake, allowing White a huge initiative. 8. c5
 Be7 9. Rg1 h5 (9...Nf6 10. Bxh6+-)
 10. h3 Nf6 11. Bh6 Ne8 12. e4+-

White is already winning because of his huge initiative.) 8. Qd3 c5!? Black sacrifices a pawn for the initiative, adding more oil to the fire! (Before breaking open the center on White's uncastled king, Black could have included the following exchange 8...Nxc3 9. Qxc3 and now 9...c5 10.
 dxc5 Bxc5 11. g5 hxg5 12. Bxg5 f6 13.
 Bd2 Nc6 14. Rg1∞ remains tremendously complicated. The position is roughly balanced and I slightly prefer White, but this is an entirely 3-result game.) 9. Nxe4 dxe4
 10. Qxe4 cxd4 11. Nxd4?!

This natural move secures a material advantage but allows black to gain momentum with his pieces. (11. g5!
 This intermediate move is stronger than recapturing the central pawn.
 White's attack becomes quite powerful. 11...Nc6 12. gxh6 g6
 (12...f5 13. Qc2 g6 14. Rg1+-) 13. Rg1

13...Kh7 14. Bg5±) 11...Nc6 12. Bd2 Nxd4 13. Qxd4 e5 14. Qe4 Bd7

Black has full compensation for the pawn due to White's uncastled king and weakened kingside (due to the g4 pawn). Now White needs to be careful not to succumb to Black's lead in development. 15. Rg1 This move was forced, since Black threatened to win material with Bc6. 15...Bc6 16. Qf5 g6 17. Qc2 Bc5 18. Rg3 Qf6 19. e3 Rfd8 20. Bc3 Qe6? This is a normal move that maintains the tension, but the queen is tactically vulnerable here due to an invisible resource... (20...a5! This move was stronger, and it's not clear how White can improve his position. Black has full compensation for his missing pawn.) 21. h4?! I miss a beautiful sacrifice which my opponent allows on the following turn. 21...a6?!

22. Qf5!! This seemingly impossible move gives White a winning position. With the queens being exchanged off, Black's compensation for the pawn evaporates completely. 22...Re8 (22...gxf5 23. gxf5+ Kh7 24. fxe6 fxe6 25. Bxe5+-) (Trying to preserve the queen proves futile after 22...Qe7 23. Qxe5 Qxe5 24. Bxe5+-)

23. Qxe6 Rxe6 24. O-O-O

Now White is winning since Black is a pawn down without compensation. I converted this handily. 24...Bf8 25. g5 hgx5 26. hgx5 b5 27. Be2 bxc4 28. Bxc4 Ree8 29. Kb1 Rab8 30. Ka2 Bb5 31. Rg4 e4 32. Bd5 Be2

33. Rh4 Bg7 (33...Bxd1?? 34. Rh8#) 34. Rdh1 Bxc3 35. bxc3 Bh5 36. Rxe4 Rec8 37. Rc4 Rd8 38. Rd4 Rxd5 39. Rxd5 Bf3 40. Rhd1 Black resigns. 1-0 Black resigned since taking either rook simplifies the position into a losing rook endgame two pawns down.

Round 6: GM Akopian regained the lead after methodically grinding down GM Ghazarian in the last game to finish in round 6. GM Mikaelyan settled for a quick 17 move draw against FM Rostomyan who drew all his games in the championship.

Round 7: The result of the last game to finish in the championship, GM Ghazarian beating GM Baryshpolets in a highly complicated game, meant the tie break using Sonneborn-Berger System favored GM Akopian who was crowned as the 2025 State Champion.

This was played in the final round, and I was eager to bounce back after losing to the eventual tournament winner (Vladimir Akopian) in the previous round. 1. c4 e6 2. g3 d5 3. Bg2 d4 4. Nf3 Nc6 5. So far, the position remains closed, but White has an easy plan with a future kingside expansion involving f4-g4-h4. It's difficult for Black to come up with a plan in this position. 17...Bd7 18. Following a draw in round four, I had 3.5/4 going into this round, while Julian was leading the tournament with a perfect score of 4/4. 14. Rd1 I considered this a strong option, but underestimated my opponent's next move. (A simple 14. f3 keeps the advantage)

14...Be5! The idea is to provoke 15.f4 and weaken my pawn structure. (The immediate 14...Bxc3+ 15. 37. Kd4? We were only three moves away from the second time control, so I decided to keep an eye on the b-pawn rather than take any risks. (However, White should apparently stick to his pawn with 37. Kf4! and win after Nc5 38. f6 b4 39. f7 Rf8 40. Rh7 b3 41. Bf6) 37...b4? (If Black had played 37...Nc5! 38. Bf4 Rd8 39. f6 Rf8 40. Kc3 b4+! the game was close to a draw) 38. Bf4! Kb5 39. f6 b3 40. Bxd6 b2

41. f7! Rd8 (41...Re1 42. Ba3!) 42. f8=Q b1=Q (42...Rxf8 43. Bxf8 b1=Q 44. Rb6+ skewering the queen) 43. Qxd8 Black can only hope for a perpetual, but the king easily gets away. 43...Qb2+ 44. Ke4 Qe2+ 45. Kf5 Qxf3+ 46. Bf4 Nc5 47. Rb6+ Kc4 48. Qg8+ Kc3 49. Qg3 Black resigns. 1-0

The Best Games from 2025 Pacific Southwest Open

By Chuck Ensey, IM Jack Peters, and IM Robert Shlyakhtenko

225 players attended this 4th of July weekend tournament at the Orange County Airport Hilton, a great turnout that allowed the published prize fund of $18,000 to be increased to $20,000. There were six sections with about 30 players in each section, except for U2000 and U1800 which had about 50 players each. Jim Harrell directed the tournament with assistance from Sindu Baradhan and Jake Nemeth.

There were 9 rounds over 3 days, with each day having a longer time control than the previous day. Three byes were allowed for those who didn't want to play on Friday July 4th where the three games were G/45 d10 at 10AM, 1PM and 4 PM, so there was plenty of time to enjoy the fireworks that night. Saturday had four games at G/60 d10 and Sunday had just two games at G/120 d10. The idea is that the early games usually have bigger rating differentials so those games might go faster, while the more important games towards the end that decide the winners might require more time for thought.

The other somewhat unusual feature of this event was the top section (Elite) was restricted to players rated 2000 or more. The other sections also had a "play-up" fee of $100 if the player was below certain levels (1900 for the U2200, 1700 for the U2000, 1400 for U1800 and 1000 for U1400). This money raised more revenue so we could increase the prize fund and helped pay for the ballroom rental.

The central location of this event in Irvine is nice as it is closer to San Diego than many other LA locations, but it is still fairly easy for many LA players to attend. The ballroom was spacious along with the skittles room and TD room. Scoresheets and pencils were provided but not chess equipment, although we had sets, clocks and scorebooks for sale if needed. The attendance has increased every year for this event, so we plan to be back next year with a $20,000 guaranteed prize fund.

Here are the winners of each section.

Elite: 1st Place IM Robert Shlyakhtenko (8), $2,000. 2nd/3rd Place FM Sihan Tao and NM Sarthak Gattani (6), $1,200 each. 4th Place IM Keaton Kiewra (5½), $500. 1st/2nd U2200 FM Benjamin Tang and NM Felix Guo (5½), $500 each. 5th/6th Place FM Michael Casella, NM Ashwin Damaraju, NM Arjun Damaraju, and Amudan Mangudi (5), $125 each.

U2200: 1st Place Sabarish Kailasam, Francis Ordanza, and Manu Prasad (6½), $833 each. 4th Place WFM Tsegmed Munkchuluun, Shreyas Sakharkar, and Howard Wang (6), $66 each.

U2000: 1st Place Martin Leung (7½) $1,200; 2nd Place Jackson Scamehorn (7), $900. 3rd/4th Place Linus Eisenberg and Emon Bayrooti (6½), $300 each.

U1800: 1st Place Nicholas Scarda (7½), $1,200. 2nd Place Alex Xiong (7), $900.

U1400: 1st Place Bryan Chao (8), $800. 2nd Place Roy Huang (6½), $600.

The U1000 section had several provisional players, so the biggest prize went to 3rd Place James Kased (6½) for $800.

See the SCCF website or my Facebook page for other winners at this event.

The Best Game Prize went to Michael Taylor for $100, 2nd Best was Jackson Scamehorn ($75) and 3rd was Sarthak Gattani ($25).

1. Nh3? A horrible move, useful only for its undeniable shock value. 1...e5
2. f4 d5 3. g3 Bd6? (Black can snatch a pawn by 3...Bxh3 4. Bxh3 exf4, although White gets a little compensation from 5. d4 fxg3 6 hxg3) (The simplest answer is 3...e4)
4. fxe5 Bxe5 5. d4 Bd6 6. Qd3 Qf6 7. Nc3 c6?

16. Nc3! Crushing. Black cannot defend against the threats of 17. Nd5+ and 17. Nb5+. Qd8 (If 16...Ne5 17. Nb5+ Kc6, White wins with 18. Bg2+ Kd7 19. Qb3 Nf6 20. Nxd6 Qxd6 21. Rd1) 17. The point is that Black often needs to castle queenside in the ...Nh5 lines, but this becomes an unlikely prospect now that ...a5 has been played. 10. Bxe7 Qxe7 11. Nge2 g6 12. O-O-O

The most ambitious. If Black castles kingside, then White can easily begin an attack here. 12...Ng7 13. Kb1 Nb6 (13...O-O may be better. White gains an advantage only with 14. Nf4!, waiting for Black to declare his intentions. (For instance, 14...b5 is strongly met by 15. e4!) (whereas on 14...Nf6 White plays 15. g4)) 14. g4 Preventing ...Bf5, which would allow Black the favourable exchange of light-squared bishops. 14...h5! A very ambitious move. Now Black is more or less committed to keeping his king in the center. 15. Nf4 (15. e4 was a good alternative; after 15...dxe4 16. Bxe4 Be6 17. f3! White has a stable advantage, due to his safer king.) 15...g5 16. Nfe2?! White doesn't sense the urgency required by the position and is content to have provoked the weakening move ...g5. (Instead, White should open the center immediately: 16. Nxh5! Nxh5 17. gxh5 Rxh5 18. e4 dxe4 19. Bxe4 Be6 20. Rhe1! followed by d4-d5.) 16...Bd7 (16...hxg4 17. hxg4 Rxh1 18. Rxh1 Bxg4? (18...Kd8! followed by ...Ne8 keeps Black in the game.) 19. Nxd5! Nxd5 (19...cxd5 20. Bb5+!) 20. Rh8+ Kd7 21. Rxa8 Nb4 22. Qb3 Nxd3 23. Rb8!+- and White wins.) 17. e4 dxe4 18. Bxe4

18...Be6?! Wasting a tempo. (18...hxg4! Black should take the chance to simplify the position and bring his king to safety. After 19. hxg4 Rxh1 20. Rxh1 O-O-O 21. d5 White maintains a small initiative, but Black's position has its pluses as well.) 19. f4?! Given the short time control (G/45), I was unable to calculate the variations precisely and played on instinct. Unfortunately, this heavy-handed approach to the position loses most of the advantage. (19. d5! was strongest; after cxd5 20. Bxd5 Nxd5 21. Nxd5 Bxd5 22. Rxd5 White realizes the idea of 16.Nfe2: the weaknesses created by ...g6-g5 make Black's defense very difficult. hxg4? only makes matters worse in view of 23. Rc1! (threatening Qc8+) Ne6 24. hxg4 With a decisive advantage.) 19...hxg4 20. d5 (20. f5! was stronger, intending Bc4 21. d5! cxd5 22. hxg4 Rxh1 23. Bxh1 With domination.) 20...cxd5 21. Bd3 White has sacrificed two pawns and is about to lose a third; he maintains good attacking chances, but objectively Black holds the balance in multiple ways.

However, it turned out that playing this irrational position with little time left was much easier as White than as Black.

21...gxh3 (21...Rxh3 is more sturdy; after 22. Nd4 gxf4 23. Qf2 Black parries the assault with Nd7 24. Qxf4 Qf6! 25. Nxe6 Nxe6 26. Qxg4 Rxh1 27. Rxh1 O-O-O 28. Nxd5 Qe5=) 22. fxg5 Opening more lines. 22...Qxg5?! Leaving the queenside undefended. (22...Nc4! followed by queenside castling would solve Black's issues for the moment.)

23. Nb5! O-O? The decisive mistake; Black's king is very weak here. (Black had to give back part of the material with 23...Rc8! 24. Nd6+ Ke7! 25. Nxc8+ Rxc8 26. Qb3 Qe3! with mutual chances.) 24. Rdg1 Qe5 25. Nbd4!? Now the best, but sufficient. Black cannot parry White's numerous attacking ideas, such as Qd2-Qh6. 25...Bd7 26. Bh7+ Kh8 27. Bf5! The most precise way to finish the game. 27...h2 (27...Bxf5 28. Qxf5! wins.) (27...Kg8 28. Rxh3 Rfc8 29. Qd3 Kf8 30. Rh8+ Ke7 31. Qa3+! also does not help Black. Qd6 32. Qe3+ also does not help Black.) 28. Rg2 Kg8 29. Rgxh2 Nxf5 30. Rg2+ 1-0

I thought this game was a good example of how to pose an opponent practical problems in an objectively equal position. 1. d4 Nf6 2. c4 e6 3. Nc3 Bb4 4. f3 d5 5. a3 Bxc3+ 6. bxc3 c6 7. e3 In recent years, 7.e4 has been trending, but I wanted to avoid a theoretical battle. 7...O-O 8. Bd3 b6 9. Ne2 Ba6 10. e4?!

Over-the-board inspiration. White has long-term compensation for the pawn owing to his superiority on the dark-squares. (I knew that 10. cxd5! Bxd3 11. Qxd3 cxd5 12. e4 Nc6 was the theoretical continuation, where White can play in several ways, but during the game I felt that Black's task would be too simple here.) 10...Bxc4 11. Bg5 Bxd3 12. Qxd3 Qc7 Black doesn't fear the doubling of his pawns, since White's pieces are not well-positioned to attack them. 13. O-O Nbd7?! The knight is passively placed on d7. (13...Ne8! is the best setup for Black. After 14. e5 (14. Rael f6! 15. Bf4 Nd6 is fine for Black, who has now covered his weaknesses on the dark squares. The straightforward 16. e5 fxe5 17. Bxe5 Nd7 18. Bg3 Rfe8 19. Nf4 Nf8 doesn't give White anything.) 14...c5! the other knight comes to c6, and Black can meet 15. f4 with f5!) 14. e5 Ne8 White has a promising attacking setup, but he must choose his plan carefully. My next few moves are all somewhat inaccurate.

15. Qe3 Prophylaxis against ...f6. (However, 15. Rael! was a more expedient way of attaining the same goal. Next, White will try to create a hook on the kingside with h2-h4.) (I should also note that 15. Be7? never works in view of Nxe5!) 15...Kh8 16. Nf4 A natural move, but now White cannot play h2-h4 without trapping his own bishop. 16...c5 17. Qel?! White transfers his queen to h4, but this plan is questionable. It's not for nothing that Philidor once called pawns the "soul of chess." With pure piece play, White will never be able to develop a kingside attack, as Black has not made any weaknesses on this side of the board. 17...Rc8 18. Qh4 b5?! Weakening the c5-square. (18...Rg8! Followed by ...Nf8 would repel the attack, and the advantage would pass to Black.) 19. Be7 Rg8

20. Nd3! Switching to positional measures. Now White either provokes the closing of the queenside, which is favorable to him, or the move ...cxd4, which gives White the c5-square. 20...c4 (After 20...cxd4 21. cxd4, I expected Qb6 (21...Qa5 22. Qf4! f6

23. Qg4 lets White pose some problems.) 22. Nc5 Nxc5 23. Bxc5 Qb7 24. Rfb1 Qd7! with an unclear position. White certainly has enough compensation for the pawn, but probably not more. (24...Nc7? 25. Qe7!)) 21. Nf4 21...Nxe5? Probably a miscalculation; there was no need for such drastic measures. (I expected 21...Nf8! 22. Nh3 Ng6 where White must choose how to force a draw. The flashy way is 23. Qxh7+! (and the boring way is 23. Ng5 h6! 24. Nxf7+ Kh7 25. Ng5+)) 22. dxe5 Qxe5 23. Nh3! Maybe my opponent missed this backward move. White gets out of ...g7-g5 ideas and creates a threat of his own. (23. Rael Qxc3 24. Rxe6? is one of the lines that Black may have hoped for; it seems that White is winning, but after g5! the tables have turned.) 23...f6 24. Qel! The simplest. The endgame is winning for White, as Black's pawns are easily blockaded.

24...Qxe1 25. Rfxe1 Rc6 26. Bb4 Nc7 27. f4 Re8 28. Nf2 Kg8 29. Ng4 Na6 30. Ne3 Nc5 (or 30...Kf7 31. Nc2 followed by Nd4.) 31. Nxd5! Kf7 32. Bxc5 Rxc5 33. Ne3 Rd8 34. a4 a6 35. axb5 axb5 36. SCCF team wins third place at the National Tournament of State Champions

By CM Ala'a-Addin Moussa, IM Isaac Wang, NM Esther Jou, and GM Melikset Khachiyan

For the second year in a row, the SCCF team at the National Tournament of State Champions fell short by 0.5 points of winning first place, landing third place on a tie break with a cumulative 21 points.

The NTOSC runs annually alongside the US Open. Each US state (NorCal and SoCal are split) selects one representative for each section:

- Rockefeller National Tournament of Elementary School State Champions
- Barber National Tournament of Middle School State Champions
- Haring National Tournament of Girls State Champions
- Denker National Tournament of High School State Champions
- Irwin National Tournament of Senior State Champions

This year, the NTOSC was held in Middleton, Wisconsin from June 28th to 31st.

IM Isaac Wang, who played the Denker High School championship, was the only team member to get on the podium by winning 3rd place on a tiebreak, earning $300 cash prize, a $3000 scholarship, and a $500 special prize for the best result U16 age.

1. e4 e5 This move was already a huge surprise to my opponent as previously I had only been playing the Najdorf Sicilian. The reason I rejected the Najdorf is because White has so many options on move 6, and I wanted to limit my prep. I had some ideas against both the Spanish and Italian, which my opponent was playing all the time. 2. Nf3 Nc6 3. Bb5 a6 4. Ba4 Nf6 5. Nc3 Bc5 6. Bxc6 dxc6 7. h3 Qe7 8. d3 Nd7 9. Be3 Bd6 10. O-O O-O

We got a very normal position, but I wasn't so familiar with the middle game ideas. I mainly focused on playing by intuition. 11. Nd2 b5 12. a4 Bb7 13. Qg4 Rae8 14. Nb3 Qe6? I can't remember why I decided to offer a trade of queens. This is a huge positional mistake because an endgame is extremely pleasant for White. Black's pieces are not doing much and play is quite limited. White can slowly improve. I should have tried to go for g6 then f5. (14...Kh8 15. Ne2 g6 16. Ng3 f6 17. Qh4 Rf7 18. Ne2 Qf8 19. f3 f5=) 15. Na5 Ba8

16. Rfb1? (16. Qxe6 Rxe6 17. f3 I would have hated playing this position. White has clear plans, and all I can do is wait. The engine gives around +0.7, but it's so difficult to play Black for a human. 17...h5 18. Nb3 Bb7 19. Kf2 f6 20. Ke2 Kf7

21. Nb1 Rb8 22. N1d2 Ree8 23. Rfc1±) 16...Qe7 I realized I should keep queens on the board and go for the g6-f5 idea that I mentioned earlier. 17. Ne2 Kh8 18. Ng3 g6 19. h4 h5?! (19...Nc5 20. h5 Ne6 21. Qh3! Nf4 22. Qh2 Kg8 23. Nb3 f5=)

20. Nxh5?! I think my opponent's aggressive playing style may have been the reason why he did not think positionally and try to trade queens. (20. Qg5! Qe6 21. Nb3 Be7 22. Qh6+ Kg8 23. Nd2 b4 24. Nf3 Qf6! 25. Bg5 Qg7 26. Qxg7+ Kxg7 27. Bxe7 Rxe7 28. Ne2±) 20...gxh5 21. Qxh5+ Kg8 22. Qg4+ Kh8 23. Qh5+ Kg8 24. Bh6 My opponent was very ambitious and decided to go for the win. The imbalance is quite strange so I couldn't figure out what the evaluation roughly was. The engine gives equal but I thought my position may have been slightly easier to play. 24...f6 25. Bxf8 Nxf8

26. Nb3?! (26. b4 Ne6 27. Qg6+ Kh8 28. c4 Nf4 29. Qh6+ Kg8 30. c5 Qf8 31. Qxf8+ Bxf8 32. g3 Ne6 33. Kg2=) 26...Bb7?! (26...b4 This move was an idea in so many positions later in the game. I think the point is that White's rooks are limited, and I will go c5 next to open up my bishop. 27. c3 c5 28. Na5 Ne6 29. Qg6+ Kf8 30. Qh6+ Qg7 31. Qxg7+ Kxg7 32. g3 Bf8±) 27. Re1?! (27. Na5 Ba8 28. b4=) 27...Qf7! 28. Qxf7+ Kxf7 29. Na5 Ba8 30. Rf4! f5 49. d4+- If he locks my dark squared bishop, the game is easily over.) 48...Kxe5 Around here, my opponent started getting nervous as he got below a minute. Rh1 Ra8+- This is extremely tricky. White's still winning, but it's so difficult.)

51. Rf2! Rf8 The funny thing is that in this position during the game I still thought I was doing okay, probably a little worse but fighting hard and creating complications. However, Rf1 would have just ended all my play. Luckily my opponent and I had a moment of mutual blindness. 52. Rxf3?? White panicked under time pressure and blundered. (52. Rf1) 52...Rxf3 53. tactical errors. Somehow it fizzled out to a draw.

What advice would you give to other aspiring chess players?

If you're an improving chess player, stop putting so much pressure on yourself! Rating increases come in chunks rather than just a continuous straight line up. Decline all the draw offers, give yourself the grace to mess up and eventually you will be much stronger for it.

IM John Bryant

John Bryant is a familiar face on the R&F, winning big-name tournaments like the 2024 American Open and 2025 Dreaming King Open. He's played chess for 25 years, starting from age 8, and he received the International Master title in 2013.

What is your best chess achievement?

Winning the US Open in 2012 and participating in the 2013 US Championship. My best rating performance was 2nd at the 2012 North American Open.

What advice would you give to other aspiring chess players?

Think about how chess skills can help you in life. Resourcefulness and thinking ahead will help you in any career endeavors. Also, enjoy the social aspect of chess. You can connect with other bright minds in the chess world. Don't focus all-in on chess unless you're an uber prodigy with world championship potential, and even if that's you, you can probably change the world in other domains.

GM Michael Brown

GM Michael Brown was born and raised in Orange County, CA, and learned chess at the age of 6. More than 20 years later, he still loves the game and can trace much of his success in the chess world to the SoCal chess community, from his fellow peers to his coaches.

What is your best chess achievement?

I made the Grandmaster title shortly after graduating college, and this remains my best chess accomplishment to date. In terms of my best chess performances, I won the 2015 SCCF Championship and had the pleasure to represent the US in several World Youth chess tournaments.

What advice would you give to other aspiring chess players?

My advice would be generally not to lose sight of what first attracted you to the game. For me, I was reading books detailing the brilliancies of chess titans from past eras (e.g., Kasparov, Korchnoi, Fischer) and fell in love with the art behind chess, and have made sure to keep this in mind even when I was playing competitively.

Chess can also generally be a great way to make friends and to develop skills outside the classroom/workplace that can aide you in your other day-to-day work. Concentration, ability to visualize problems mentally, and calculation are all useful skills in many jobs. And some of my best friends to this day remain my former colleagues and peers from the chess world, whose advice and friendships I deeply value.

NM Robert Hurdle

Robert Hurdle is a National Master that has been playing chess since the 1970s. He was the winner of the California High School Championship in 1972 (at the age of 14), winner of the Student Chess Club Championship in 1976, and master since January 1979 (adjusted retroactively in 1980, due to the rating system being down for most of 1978/1979).

What's your best chess achievement?

My career highlight was playing board one on the team that won the USATW in 1999. My best individual highlight was scoring 9-3 at the 563 player US Open in Chicago in 1979, beating master James Thinnsen in the final round. I tied for 11th-19th and ended up splitting the 2nd/3rd Expert prizes for a prize check of $50. My story about chess in Southern California comes from a different tournament.

When the Reseda Chess Club was active and vibrant in the early 1970s, some weekend chess tournaments were sponsored. Often a group of chess players from Santa Barbara would come down to the tournament, and Nick de Firmian was present several times. At the close of one tournament in 1974, I was talking to the Santa Barbara group (at their car) in the parking lot at Reseda Park. One of the guys stated that 3.5-2.5 in the Open section was better than 4-2 in the under-1800 section, and I agreed. I was then informed that I was going to be awarded the Junior trophy for 4-2 (in the under-1800 section), but that Nick had scored 3.5-2.5 in the Open section. The Junior trophy should have been only for the best score in the Open section. I told them to wait for me to come back. I got the Junior trophy from the tournament director and turned it over to the Santa Barbara group, wishing them a safe journey home.

Seven years later at the Pacific Southwest Open, after the pairings were up, I mentioned to Nick de Firmian that I was paired as Black against Duckworth, and asked what I should do against The Spike (1. g4). De Firmian said that I should play 1...e5, then 2...d5, and at some point play f5 to open the f-file for attack. The game did not work out exactly as planned, but is one of my most memorable games. It should be noted that Duckworth had not yet attained the rating of master, so I was the higher rated player at the time.

What advice would you give to other aspiring chess players?

Study the book "500 Master Games" by Tartakower and Du Mont to get some historical background. Also Fischer's "My Sixty Memorable Games" is fantastic.
